

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS, INFORMATICS, CYBER & HOMELAND SECURITY (EPICH)

Focusing on preparing students for in-demand career fields in partnership with the University at Albany, this program introduces students to necessary content and skills in developing technology with an emphasis on public safety and security. Students will confront challenges of the 21st century through interdisciplinary understandings of information and information technologies in society and in organizations, becoming the next generation of leaders. This one-year, seniors-only program is housed in the University at Albany's brand new, state-of-the-art ETEC building. New Visions: EPICH is designed to provide students with a strong understanding of modern-day technology and the relationship technology has with society and prepare students for postsecondary education in related fields.
